This new early learning center, designed and constructed for Centers for New Horizons is located on a prominent street corner in Chicago's historic Bronzeville community. The perceived size of the facility is mitigated through façade and volumetric treatment of the building.

A red brick, more traditional volume is located near the intersection mirroring the traditional street set-backs in the neighborhood and contrasting, less ornate, volumes set back from the street.

This Bronzeville facility provides day care for infants and toddlers, children 3 to 5 years old, and an after-school program for older children. Program features include 11 classrooms, a large motor skill room, a parent and child interactive room, a food preparation kitchen, social service and administrative support areas.
